Good times with friends

ACADEMICS

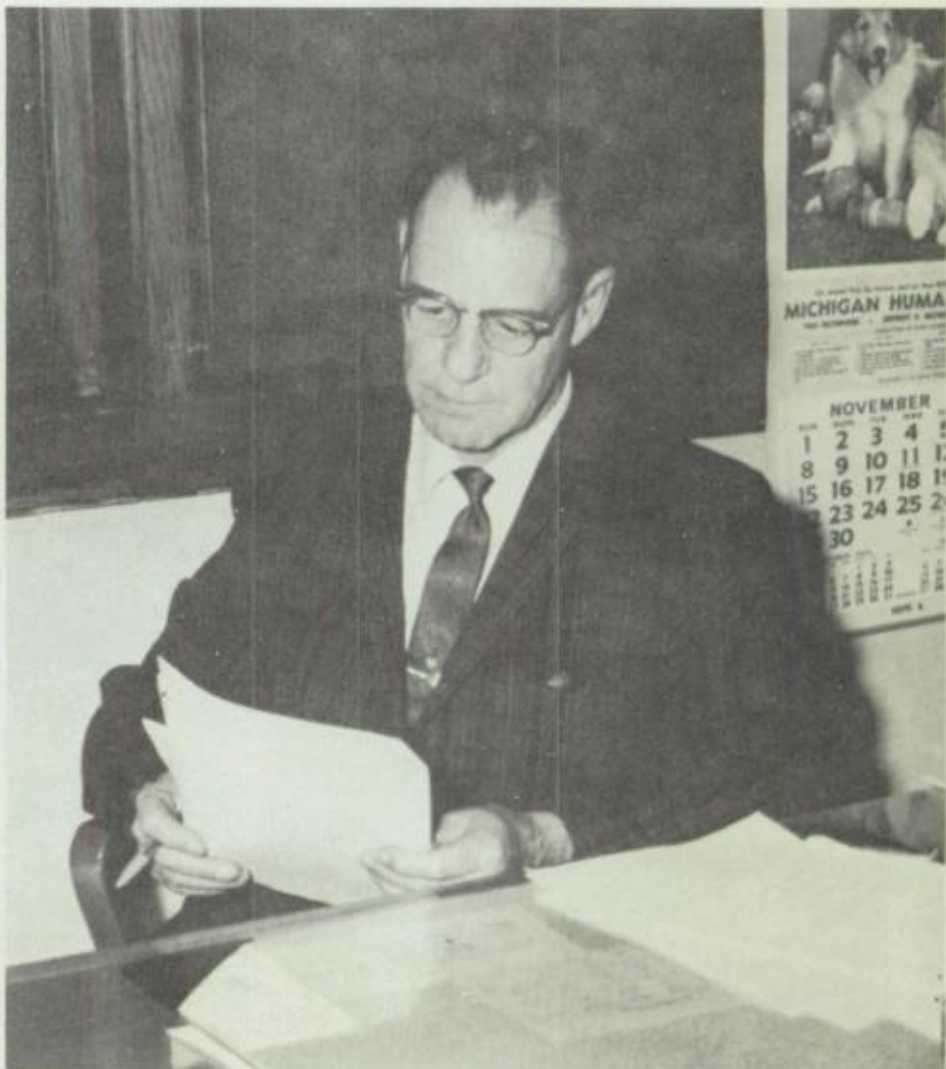

Mrs. Jessie Kennedy joined the Northwestern administrative family as the institution began its second half century of development and progress. Her ready smile and friendly contenance soon became a charming and familiar sight in the halls; at student assemblies; at student programs and activities; and at athletic events. It was readily apparent to all students that she was an administrator sincerely interested in helping them develop their full potential as scholars and good citizens.

Under Mrs. Kennedy's dynamic leadership, Northwestern enthusiastically moves to face the challenges of the next 50 years.

Assistant Principal Sidney Berkowitz is responsible for student discipline, the lunchroom, supplies, Public Address announcements, and faculty duty assignments.

Wayne Nester, Assistant Principal, is in charge of programing, student enrollment, and resource and substitute teacher placement.

Mrs. Eleanor Jones discusses curriculum and next years classes with Leatha Jones.

Mr. Martin Keck and Charles Crutchfield consider the choices available in colleges and scholarship opportunities.

Counselors

The counselors job is a many faceted and indispensable one. They are an integral part of the school's administration. Counselors serve as advisors and friends to student's as they prepare themselves for the future and search for solutions to the problems which confront them in their day to day life as students and young adults.

Whether one writes a novel or a letter; reads a book or a newspaper; or orally expresses his thoughts and ideas a keen grasp of the English Language is necessary. The English Department endeavors to teach the students of Northwestern to write effectively, to speak intelligently and to read with comprehension and appreciation the literature of the world.

Learning about the customs of other countries, as well as their native tongues, are among the many aims of Northwestern students enrolled in the Foreign Language Department. In addition to Latin (1-8), Russian (1-6), French (1-4), and Spanish (1-8) a new class, which has never before been offered in our city, is now a part of Northwestern's language curriculum.

The class is called Latin Heritage. It is designed to introduce the cultures of the ancient Greeks and Romans to the 10th grade non-language students. In addition, the originator and teacher, Mrs. Cutt, includes in the course of study Greek and Roman mythology, and the basic Latin vocabulary words which now form such an integral part of the English Language.

Many students of the Fine Arts Department participate in local and city wide cultural events. Fine Arts adds variety, richness, and depth to the lives of all students.

Mathematics

Department

Mathematics is often called the Queen of the Science. It is one of the most basic of the academics. Mastery of this science can lead the student to exciting achievements and advancements in the modern world. The value of mathematics is multiplied many times as its concepts are utilized in other sciences. It adds meaning to our daily lives, divides our work, and subtracts the needless from the necessary. In the Mathematics Department preliminary courses are offered in Algebra (1-4), General Mathematics (3-4), Geometry and Senior Mathematics (1-2) or Trigonometry.

Science Department

Science has been defined as a knowledge of facts, laws and proximate causes. Here at Northwestern the student has a chance to broaden himself by gaining an overall knowledge of science by participation in various courses.

The 10th Grade student finds excitement and the thrill of discovery in laboratory biology, general biology and physical science. In the 11th grades the depth of study increases with chemistry, physiology, physics and genetics. The development and understanding of these sciences is the key to man's future.

Berlin, Cuba, and Vietnam seem extremely remote in relation to the daily lives of the students. The stimulating and interesting courses offered in the Social Studies Department help to bridge this gap. Gaining a full understanding of our political, social, and personal relationships is impossible without proper study and investigation.

The topic is, "Should the U.S. use atomic warheads in South Vietnam," as Mr. Reinholz prepares to give the go ahead to panel members: David Garrett, Janice Mack, Della Sutton, Dietta Porter, and James Finley.

It's test day in American History with Mr. Jeffries!

Subjects such as sociology enable students to gain insight into social and personal problem. Courses in American History, Civics, Economics, and Geography provide the understanding and knowledge that will be needed by the responsible leaders and citizens of tomorrow.

A seminar in World Problems was offered for the first time this year. It represented an experiment in team teaching by the Social Studies Department. Honors classes are offered in all the regular Social Studies courses and the department also sponsors a Social Studies Club.

Office Co-op

"Learning while doing" is an old educational adage. Office Co-op is a thriving educational organization, designed to train and secure employment for girls and boys who are skilled in typing, bookkeeping and other business and secretarial fields. Office Co-op students are also members of Jots, a club for the future secretaries and progressive executives of the future.

Northwestern Co-op students are currently employed by such widely diversified companies as The Household Finance Company, Manufacturers National Bank, Michigan Bell Telephone Company, McFall Brothers Funeral Home, and The Household Management Company.

Cheerleaders

The bulky red sweater and pert red and gray skirt of Northwestern's cheer team has become a familiar sight on the fields and in the fieldhouses wherever the Colts appear. Over and Over, performing a difficult and demanding job, they personify the school spirit which manifests itself at every athletic function. During the summer months, the girls have sessions to develop and perfect the intricate maneuvers which then become a part of their cheer routines.

Beginning in the fall with the first football game, the cheerleaders are present at all games. In such public appearances they not only represent athletic spirit but the entire school as well.

Athletic Committee

At Northwestern the student body receives the dedicated support of all the faculty. On the Athletic Committee teachers, in cooperation with the R. O. T. C., N Club, Booster Club, Cheerteam, and the band, raise funds to keep money flowing through the athletic treasury for the purchase of much needed athletic equipment. They also sponsor Pep Rallies and award banquets to booster school spirit and insure greater student participation in school activities.

Seated: E. Martin, F. Snowden, R. Elliott, C. Cooper. Standing: H. Tabor, V. Jenkins, L. Jeffries, R. Allen, S. Bishop, M. Jackson.

The Booster Club

The promotion of school spirit and good sportsmanship is the goal of Northwestern's Booster Club. The club was first organized in 1963, and membership in the club increased by leaps and bounds during the past year. Through pep rallies, hard work, and social activities the Booster Club has helped develop the type of good sportsmanship and tremendous school spirit for which Northwestern is famous. The architectural club strives to stimulate interest in the field of architecture. During the past year members of the club participated in projects designed to increase their understanding of the construction of future homes, the study of typical house plans, and of drafting. Included as a part of these projects were visits to the sites of various architectural landmarks in and around Detroit. Sponsor of the club is Mr. Taylor.

Colt Staff

Sensational is the name for Northwestern's Colt Staff. Two years ago Northwestern did not have a printed school paper but now we are award winners. After just one year's hard work on the part of the staff and their advisor, Mr. Kucharski, THE COLT won first prize as the best high school newspaper at the Detroit Student Press Association Convention in October 1964. THE COLT is published eight times during the school year. Through the newspaper, the student body is kept informed of the activities of all students, clubs, teams, and organizations at Northwestern.

SPORTS

Basketball

3 dribbles and a pass point up one of the differences between girl's and boy's basketball. The female cager is also restricted to one half of the floor with the exception of one roving forward and guard for each team.

This year's team finished with a record of 4 wins and 1 loss.

Now how did the ball get out there?

Looks like a jump-ball coming up.

Girls' Athletic Association

Physical fitness achieved through more widespread participation in sports activities is one of the aims of the G.A.A. All female students are automatically members of the G.A.A. and the G.A.A. Board serves as the administrative branch of the organization.

The members of the club render indispensable service to the school by serving as ushers for special programs; promoting school spirit; and by raising funds to support the girls physical education program.

The G.A.A. successfully sold pom poms, beanies and car stickers during the past year. A tea honoring outstanding girls in the athletic department is also sponsored annually by the G.A.A.

G.A.A. salesgirls are persuasive. Notice the prospective buyer already has her purse open.

Field Hockey

After a year's absence, Varsity Girls' Field Hockey returned to Northwestern. Coach Betty Boyce was pleased by the enthusiastic response she received on tryout day. The team's schedule was a tough one and, although they weren't quite city champions, our girls gained valuable "play" experience for next year. Betty Etheridge was captain of the Varsity Squad while Addie Jones captained the reserves.

For the first time in three years Northwestern had a girls' swimming team. Girls were again given the opportunity to swim in competition with other schools. Tryouts were held in September. The final selection of members was based on proficiency in skills needed for competition. These include the ability to swim the breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly, and freestyle for distances up to 50 yards and to execute a number of diving forms. Practice sessions usually lasted from 3:00 P.M. to 5:00 P.M.

The team had meets with Northern, Highland Park, Chadsey, Cass, and Northeastern in October and November.

Swimming offers young women a chance to develop aquatic skills, water safety, and good sportsmanship as well as contributing to their general good health and physical fitness. Northwestern is very happy to have its mermaids swimming again.

Dooley.

Being "in" with the N Club is challenging, rewarding, and inspiring. Whenever called upon, the gallent gentlemen in their red and gray sweaters are proud and eager to serve Northwestern.

The N Club was organized for the purpose of bringing together the members of the various teams who earn school letters. To qualify for a letter a boy must have participated for a specific length of time under competitive conditions as a member of one of Northwesterns varsity teams.

During the school year the club sponsors various social activities, which include dances, and splash parties; act as ushers at various athletic events; and provide other services to the school. Membership in the N Club is a privilege and honor which carries with it the obligation of good citizenship and sportsmanship.

Cross Country

Cross Country is an exciting and vigorous sport. Although the race is not complicated the cross country runner has to be in the best of condition to endure the exhausting distance of two miles. Cross country involves only one race two miles long as where regular track includes many races of varying lengths as well as other field events.

The Cross Country team competed against two other public high schools in each of its meets this year. In these tri-angular meets, Northwestern's thinclads had a record of four victories and one loss.

Basketball

Northwestern and Championship basketball teams are as natural a pair as The New York Yankees and the American League Baseball Pennant. This season the Colts duplicated the feat they accomplished last year by winning the Westside Championship, the Public School League Championship, the City Championship, and the State Basketball Tourney District A Championship. The team finished the regular season as the second ranked team in the State of Michigan Class A standings.

"Howdy Pardners! Glad you could make it," jokes fast gun Alfonso Gibson.

Eager Seniors await the start of the motorized "horse."

Phyllis Hicks and Sylvia Guilford chuckle over the "square dance" records they've selected while Elaine Douglas, Refus Patrick, William Winston and Elizabeth Henderson wait to get in on the joke.

....And they're off!

Phyllis finally located a horse tame enough to suit her.
